RESEARCH GRANT

Title: Economic Uncertainty and Cultural Heritage: Implications for Families and Local Development

Titolo: Incertezza economica e patrimonio culturale: Implicazioni per le famiglie e lo sviluppo locale

DESCRIPTION OF THE RESEARCH ACTIVITY

Description: The relationship between economic uncertainty and family dynamics is a central theme in contemporary socio-economic research. Economic uncertainty has emerged as a crucial factor in understanding modern family dynamics in Europe, particularly when considering the broader socio-economic context. In addition to economic factors, cultural heritage plays a pivotal role in shaping family dynamics and responses to economic uncertainty. Cultural heritage influences territorial societal norms and values, affecting how families adapt to economic challenges. For example, traditional family structures, regional cultural norms, and historical practices related to fertility and family formation are deeply rooted in cultural heritage. These elements can either mitigate or exacerbate the effects of economic uncertainty on family behaviors. From this perspective, cultural heritage is significant at both macro and micro levels: it can drive local economic development and support family choices. In Europe, there is a shared understanding that cultural heritage comprises what is considered worthy of preservation and transmission to future generations. However, each region or nation defines its own criteria and processes for designating, conserving, maintaining, communicating, and transmitting cultural heritage, often reflected in cultural heritage laws. This project aims to explore how different cultural contexts, with their unique heritages, influence the relationship between economic uncertainty and family dynamics. Given that family behaviors are interconnected with the local environment and across time, family dynamics do not occur in isolation but within the context of the socio-economic relationships present in their local surroundings.

Descrizione: La relazione tra incertezza economica e dinamiche familiari è un tema centrale nella ricerca socio-economica contemporanea. Recentemente, l'incertezza economica è un fattore cruciale per comprendere le dinamiche familiari moderne in Europa, soprattutto considerando il contesto socio-economico più ampio. Oltre ai fattori economici, il patrimonio culturale svolge un ruolo fondamentale nel plasmare le dinamiche familiari e le risposte all'incertezza economica. Il patrimonio culturale influenza le norme sociali ed i valori presenti su un territorio e, incidendo su come le famiglie si adattano alle sfide economiche. Ad esempio, le strutture familiari tradizionali, le norme culturali regionali e le pratiche storiche relative alla fertilità e alla formazione della famiglia sono profondamente radicate nel patrimonio culturale. Questi elementi possono mitigare o esacerbare gli effetti dell'incertezza economica sui comportamenti familiari. Da questa prospettiva, il patrimonio culturale è significativo sia a livello macro che micro: può promuovere lo sviluppo economico locale e supportare le scelte familiari. In Europa, esiste una comprensione condivisa che il patrimonio culturale comprenda ciò che è considerato degno di essere preservato e trasmesso alle future generazioni. Tuttavia, ogni regione o nazione definisce i propri criteri e processi per designare, conservare, mantenere, comunicare e trasmettere il patrimonio culturale, spesso riflessi nelle leggi sul patrimonio culturale. In questo breve contestualizzazione teorica, questo progetto mira a esplorare come diversi contesti culturali, con i loro patrimoni unici, influenzino la relazione tra incertezza economica e dinamiche familiari. Dato che i comportamenti familiari sono interconnessi con l'ambiente locale e nel tempo, le dinamiche familiari non avvengono in isolamento ma nel contesto delle relazioni socio-economiche presenti nel loro ambiente più vicino.
